

HOLLOWAY JOINS FIRST NATIONAL BANK

First National Bank of Middle Tennessee continues to expand its footprint in the mid-state region and has added the Williamson and Davidson County markets to its service area.

Chris Holloway has joined First National and will operate from a new office in Spring Hill where he has been a banking executive since 2012.

The loan office will be located at Suite 10, 4918 Highway 31, Spring Hill. First National has offices in McMinnville, Murfreesboro and Smyrna and just added Shelbyville as an office location a couple of weeks before bringing on Holloway to service Williamson and Davidson counties.

“We are excited to have Chris onboard with us. Chris is a very well-balanced and experienced lender and our Board of Directors have confidence that Chris will make an immediate impact in the markets that he will serve,” Pieter van Vuuren, First National president and CEO, said, adding, “Chris has proved himself in this very competitive industry and has shown that giving outstanding customer service is a crucial part of being successful.”

First National’s long, successful history and dedication to service led Holloway to join the bank in opening in a new market.

“First National is a 140-year-old bank that ranks in the top 50 in the nation in best banks to work for. Achieving this status is something that few can claim,” he said. He continued, “First National is big enough to be a financial partner with businesses in the area, yet, still small enough to care about customer service and fellow employees. First National’s size is a great fit to be supportive in the community and offer full service banking.”

A graduate of David Lipscomb University and Southern Trust School, Holloway has been involved in banking more than 15 years, serving at banks in Nashville, Franklin and Peoria, Ill., before moving to Spring Hill.

He is a youth league coach for baseball, basketball and football, a former mentor for Lipscomb’s College of Business and former Tennessee Titans scoreboard operator.
